Jack Frost — Guitar

Jack Frost has spent over three decades as one of hard rock and heavy metal's most in-demand guitarists. He broke into the scene in 1994 with Frostbite, sharing stages with Warrior Soul, Kix, Slaughter, Overkill, and Fates Warning before forming Seven Witches — a band that has released ten studio albums and toured alongside Overkill, Judas Priest, Annihilator, WASP, and Armored Saint. Along the way, Jack has recorded and performed with an extraordinary list of artists, including a stint with Overkill bassist DD Verni's Bronx Casket Company, a tour and studio album with German power-metal act Metalium, and a run with Savatage on their Poets and Madmen tour alongside Judas Priest. He's also performed with Lizzy Borden, David Reece (Accept), and Joey Belladonna of Anthrax, and has released two solo albums featuring musicians from Danger Danger, Anthrax, WASP, and Armored Saint.

Beyond the stage, Jack is an accomplished producer, engineer, and songwriter, having penned the song “Metal Nation” for L.A. band London and contributed to projects across the industry. His signature tone has earned him endorsements from Gibson Guitars, Friedman and MGL amps, Celestion Speakers, and TKL Cases, along with magazine cover features in Guitar World, Guitar Player, and Metal Hammer. A dedicated educator, Jack spent over a decade as General Manager and Music Director for School of Rock, producing student showcases at venues including B.B. King's Blues Club, the Stone Pony, and the Roxy. He continues to write, record, and tour — currently at work on a new Seven Witches record with the band's classic lineup, and a third solo album. Jack is also a member of Aldo Nova's touring band.
